

Voucher System Ensures Affordability, Access

The voucher system in this legislation promotes consumer choice for all Alaskans. Two types of vouchers will be issued under the bill. The first type puts the price of insurance within the reach of all Alaskans by providing assistance, on a sliding scale, to those who cannot afford the full cost of a plan. The funding for these vouchers would come from the levy charged to non-providing employers, as well as from state and federal contributions. Without sliding scale vouchers the individual responsibility component of the legislation wouldn't be meaningful, because insurance is priced out of reach for many working Alaskans.

The second type of voucher is issued to specified individuals, who have had contributions made on their behalf by an employer or another individual, for use on health insurance products. These vouchers create a convenient way for employers to pool health contributions for an individual, whether they have one or many jobs. In particular, specified beneficiary vouchers are particularly appealing for individuals with multiple jobs, because it helps multiple employers share the cost of coverage. The system also gives businesses some certainty of their health expenditures in a given year, since expenses can be defined by contribution level and not by benefit package. The choice of plan type is left to the individual, for the obvious reason that he or she is most affected by the selection.

Contributions to specified beneficiary vouchers will not be mandated; instead, that element of the bill promotes equitable financing of health coverage by making it easier than ever for employers to contribute to the health and well being of their employees.

Affordability provides true access

Under current Alaska law any small business can buy private coverage, and every individual can buy an insurance plan, either through the private market or ACHIA (the state high risk pool). However, claiming that this equals access to health insurance is simply false. Access to health care must be more than just the legal right to buy a policy; it should ensure that all Alaskans have coverage in times of need. SB 160 mandates true access to health care through a unique voucher system that makes coverage affordable for all Alaskans.

Alaskans spent $5.3 billion on health care in 2005, a 230% increase from 1991.
